Credits for additional doctoral training

In addition to their research work, and throughout their thesis, all PhD students must follow specific training (90 hours). If the 90 hours are not followed, the thesis director may not accept the thesis defense. These specific trainings are divided as follows:

- 1/3 of specialized training organized by the research units. Their objective is to give students specific knowledge linked with their research project. They may consist of congresses, workshops, study sessions in France or abroad, or be linked to the activities of the research unit.
- 1/3 of thematic training which aim to extend the spectrum of knowledge and the scientific training of the PhD students. They are organized by the Doctoral Schools, often as seminars regrouping all the PhD students of the COMUE Léonard de Vinci
- 1/3 of professional training managed by the Collège Doctoral. The focus is on the preparation of the professional integration, the understanding of the academic world, the internationalization of research and on the understanding of businesses and entrepreneurship. Some language trainings are also suggested as PhD students are often asked to publish and communicate in workshops or congresses in French or English. You can find our training catalogue on the Collège Doctoral website: www.collegedoctoral.unilim.fr
