Notes on the speakers

Michael Connolly is a Ph.D. candidate in economics at Boston College whose research interests include topics in empirical banking and asset pricing. Prior to his graduate studies, he worked at the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City as a research associate in the Macroeconomics and Monetary Policy group. He has also held internships at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, Goldman Sachs, and Wrightson ICAP. He received a B.A. in economics and mathematics from Rutgers University.

Elis Deriantino is a Ph.D. candidate in finance at Warwick Business School whose research interests include topics in empirical banking, macro-prudential regulation, and monetary policy transmission. She received a M.A. in applied economics from University of Michigan, US. She is also a staff in Bank Indonesia since 2006.

Sandra Daudignon is graduated from the Magistère d'Economie and from the Master Empirical and Theoretical Economics of the University Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne and of the Paris School of Economics. She is currently a Ph.D. student in Macroeconomics at the University Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne and at the Paris School of Economics, and a teaching assistant in Macroeconomics and in Econometrics. Her thesis is related to the channels through which the banking regulation may amplify the credit cycle, and to the analysis of the optimal regulation in a macroeconomic context.

Sotirios Kokas is a Senior Lecturer (Associate Professor) in the Essex Business School at the University of Essex. He holds a Ph.D. in Economics (June 2015), entitled "Essays on Financial Intermediation" from the University of Cyprus. His research interests span the area of Financial Intermediation with a specific interest in empirical banking. Recently, he has concentrated on the financial networks and the syndicated loan market, including the composition of the structure as well as on the design of the regulatory and bank resolution frameworks.

Fatmira Kola is a Ph.D. candidate in University of Rome "Tor Vergata", Italy. She is graduated in "Intermediaries, International Finance and Risk Management" at the University of Rome "La Sapienza", qualified as an excellent student, getting 110/110. She works in the Risk Management Division at Credins Bank and Lecturer in the areas of Banking and Finance. Fatmira has held conferences, training and work experience in Albania, Italy, Kosovo, Macedonia, Slovenia and the USA. Her research interests include topics in Risk Management and Finance.

Jérémy Leymarie is a Ph.D. student in economics at the University of Orleans in France who works mainly in banking regulation and financial econometrics. For instance, he proposes with his coauthors backtesting tests to assess the validity of the systemic risk measure forecasts generally used to identify the financial institution contributing the most to the total risk of the financial system (SIFIs). He obtained his master degree in applied econometrics and statistics from the University of Orleans.

Kristoffer Milonas has focused his research on financial intermediation and regulation more broadly, and his policy work focuses more specifically on securitisation and covered bonds. Kristoffer started at the Bank of England in 2015, after completing his PhD in Finance at the Stockholm School of Economics. Kristoffer's Ph.D. focused on empirical financial intermediation and corporate finance. Further to the paper presented here, Kristoffer is working on understanding the mobility of retail deposits (with Walter Beckert, Birkbeck; and Paolo Siciliani and Nora Wegner, Bank of England).

Federica Minnucci is a Ph.D. student in Management - Banking and Finance Track - at the University of Rome "Tor Vergata". Her research is focused on banking crisis management tools and on the effects of the implementation of the recent resolution discipline on the financial system stability. Actually, her working paper titled "Market reaction to bail-in announcements" deals with market reaction to policy announcements introducing the new resolution mechanism and the bail-in crisis management tool in Europe. She has a M.Sc. in Finance and a bachelor degree in Economics at the University of Rome "Roma Tre".

Huyen Nguyen is a Ph.D. candidate in Industrial Economics at the University of Nottingham. She is an applied microeconomist with a particular research interest in banking, in particular regulation and supervision of banks, risk management, credit supply and liquidity creation, and mortgage markets. In 2016, she was an intern at the Deutsche Bundesbank working on risk management. Prior to her MSc and PhD studies, she was the deputy head of market risk management at Vietinbank where she collaborated also with experts from the IMF and the World Bank

Christina Nicolas is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Limoges. Her research interests include topics on capital regulations, bank risk and credit supply. Her current work focuses on the links between laws and institutions and bank behavior. Prior to her Ph.D. studies, she worked as a Financial Consultant in companies including Eli Lilly and Azadea. Christina holds a M.A. in Economics from the American University of Beirut where she also worked as a research assistant.

Thu Ha Tran is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Limoges. Areas of her recent research include corporate governance and banking economics. At the moment, the main topic of her research interest is the effectiveness of board of directors.

She holds a professional master's degree in risk management from the University of Aix-Marseille, and a research master's degree in banking and finance from the University of Limoges. Prior to joining the Ph.D. program, she was working for project management department of the Bank of Foreign Trade of Vietnam.

Nacera Yeddou is a second year Ph.D. candidate at the University of Poitiers. Her research interests include topics on bank risk, banking regulation and governance. Her current work focuses on bank ownership structure and liquidity creation. Her other ongoing research projects include works about cooperative banks particularities. She received a B.A. in banking and finance from Ecole Supérieure de Banque, Algeria and a M.A. in economics and finance from University of Poitiers.

Dian Yuan is a 3rd year Phd Student in LAPE, Université de Limoges, specialized in Banking and Finance. She got her Master of Science in Finance in Jinan University. She is a CFA (Chartered Financial Analyst) Level III Candidate. Her research fields include financial stability, financial crisis, financial intermediation, corporate finance and risk management. More specifically, her recent work examines the impacts of local banking market structure on SME's credit access and local economic activities, and she investigates changes of these impacts in crisis period

FINEST

Financial Intermediation Network of European Studies

The Financial Intermediation Network of European Studies (FINEST) acts as a research and discussion forum for Banking and Financial Intermediation researchers and practitioners throughout Europe. FINEST operates as an open research network facilitating research and other analytical synergies among academic staff involved in various European Universities as well as policymakers and financial sector practitioners.

The FINEST is a private non-profit association (network) of researchers from various universities, central banks, financial authorities, other research institutes and practitioners who are interested in exploring all aspects of banking and finance. The FINEST is currently hosted by the University of Rome III, Italy.

All those that wish to cooperate with FINEST activities can join the Network. Membership can be asked by individual researchers from universities, central banks, financial authorities, other research institutes and practitioners who are interested in exploring all aspects of banking and finance.

Activities

1. Working papers. The working paper series gives the possibility to share the research effort among all interested researchers dealing with banking and Financial Intermediation issues. At the same time, working papers will be highly viewed in the academic environment. Working papers will be reviewed following a double-blind review system.
2. Research Projects. FINEST promotes research groups, surveys and observatories on specific complex areas of Banking and Financial Intermediation in Europe with the aim to originally contribute to international research on these issues.
3. Conferences. FINEST organizes periodical (e.g. annual or bi-annual) conferences on a specific Banking and Financial Intermediation issue.
4. Workshops. FINEST promotes workshops to present high quality papers providing authors with a deep and open discussion before the paper submission to top academic journals.
5. Summer schools. FINEST organizes short summer courses on issues related to banking and financial intermediation in Europe for undergraduate and postgraduate students in accounting, economics, finance and management.
